

How many of you have visited the Marjorie Stoneman Preserve located off Flying Cow Road?

Prepared by Kate Kouba
Presented at the Membership Meeting September 13, 2021

The Preserve is the home of many varieties of water birds and native plants and trees. Visitors to the Preserve enjoy a variety of activities including biking, walks along paved paths and several boardwalks. Everyone enjoys the walk to the 6-story tower to climb and view the preserve.

As you enter the Preserve off parking lot 1, the Wellington Garden Club has established and maintains a native butterfly garden which is enjoyed by all who visit. The garden at some point during the year blooms with salvia, blanket flowers, frostweed, porter weed, golden rod and other numerous natives.

We have a great group of WGC gardeners who help maintain the garden and would love anyone interested to join us.
