They say the growing season for vegetable gardening is “flipped” here in South Florida, and that winter is preferred because of the extreme summer heat. However, with some planning, lots of hydration and frequent a/c breaks, there’s no reason to stop gardening just because it’s summer!

Come and learn about the many tropical vegetables that thrive in hot temperatures and can provide healthy and delicious greens through the hottest months of the year. Discover new veggies to enjoy and add new flavors to your dinner plate! We’ll also look at what ornamental species will look great on your patio this summer as you sip on a refreshing drink with your friends.

Lunch will follow at El Mariachi Restaurant, 1937 N. Military Trail, Suite F, West Palm Beach, FL (at the individual’s expense).
