Speaker: Lance Osborne, University of Florida Professor of Entomology

Topic: Pest Control in our Gardens

Lance Osborne, an esteemed entomology professor at the University of Florida, is a dedicated and passionate advocate for the insect world. With a Ph.D. in Entomology, Lance's expertise lies in integrated pest management and sustainable agricultural practices.

His love for insects began during his childhood explorations in Florida's countryside. Now, as a brilliant educator and researcher, he inspires students to appreciate the intricate role insects play in ecosystems. Lance's groundbreaking work in biological control and insect-plant interactions has earned him recognition within the scientific community. His commitment to promoting eco-friendly solutions solidifies his place as a respected figure in entomology.
