Meander Ann Norton Scthe's former two-acre property, which features a collection of 250 rare species of tropical palms, cycads and native plants. In 1977, Ann Norton's vision for art and natures symbiotic relationship was realized when she established Ann Norton Sculpture Gardens, ensuring accessibility of her property, palms and tropical gardens for public enjoyment as a natural sanctuary in an urban area. The organization is devoted to exhibiting works of other artists, preserving the founder's studio and displaying her monumental sculptures in a secluded urban preserve where a notable collection of rare palms is continually being developed.
